How we show up matters. The second training in the Permanency Matters series highlights the essential role of strong partnerships in successful permanency outcomes. Each team member brings important knowledge, perspective, and experience to the table. But successful partnership takes work! This training uses a combination of lecture, discussion, activities, and video to examine barriers and facilitators of effective collaboration. Participants will leave with the ability to articulate their own role in permanency teamwork and identify specific actions to take for greatest impact.

Youth in foster care, and especially those longest-waiting youth in care, are very likely to have experienced complex trauma. The third training in the Permanency Matters series looks at the impacts of this type of trauma – complex trauma impacts to eight unique domains of functioning – each of which can impact a successful permanency outcome. Participants in this training will be challenged to “connect the dots” between complex trauma and permanency outcomes on their own caseloads and identify action steps to build on strengths and minimize risks.
