If you are covered under Medicaid Direct, breast pumps could be considered under Durable Medical Equipment (DME) services with a medical necessity review. However, Medicaid is currently assessing this policy.

Accessing Breastfeeding Support Through WIC

The North Carolina WIC program supports families in determining and achieving their infant feeding goals. Families enrolled in WIC can receive information and education about breastfeeding through trained local agency staff, WIC Breastfeeding Peer Counseling program services and their local WIC agency's breastfeeding support phone line.

Local WIC agencies also provide breast pumps to participants who need them following an assessment by trained staff. WIC staff ensure that the participant receives the appropriate breast pump for their situation and educate on the use and care of the pumps.

The following breast pumps are available to WIC Program participants:

- Single-user manual pumps: ideal for occasional separation or short-term breastfeeding issues, such as engorgement or weaning
- Single-user double electric pumps: ideal for a parent who is maintaining their milk supply or is only using the pump intermittently (such as during the workday)
- Multi-user double electric pumps (loaned breastfeeding supply): ideal for a parent who is establishing their supply and the baby is not able to feed at the breast

Contact your local WIC agency to learn more about how they can support you.
