North Carolina Infant-Toddler Policies and Procedures Acknowledgement

Workplace policies and procedures are an essential part of the North Carolina Infant-Toddler Program (NC ITP). Detailed policies and procedures outline accurate ways of working, set standards of behavior and help articulate the organization's mission, vision, and values. They also help clearly define expectations for NC ITP employees and provide a source of reference to review and check whether program expectations are being met.

This NC ITP Policies and Procedures Acknowledgement form is intended to ensure that early intervention service providers are informed and comply with program policies and procedure requirements. Employees are expected to review all policies and procedures during initial orientation and then on an annual basis to remain current and compliant with program standards.

Instructions: Employees should review all policies and procedures listed below, and initial and date by each link to acknowledge their understanding and compliance with program requirements. After completing the review, initial, and date for all policies and procedures, employees should sign and date this document (at the bottom of the form) and share the completed form with their supervisor for final review and sign off. Forms will be stored in employee personnel files and updated annually.
